

any other Place. But methinks, I hear Parson S.— calling me Fool, and telling me that the Lord's Day must begin when the Sun sets to us, wherever we be; for although the Commandment was given at Mount Sinai, yet the People were to keep it at Jerusalem, and take that present Sun-set for the beginning of the Sabbath, not that of Mount Sinai. Well Parson S.— if it be so, I will not stand with you for Cloudy Days, the Interposition of Hills between us, and our Horizon, nor such Trifles. But what shall I do when I am at Sea, in Latitude of 65 or 70 Degrees in the Summer time, when the Sun sets not at all? Or what shall the Russians, the Laplanders, the Islanders, and many other Christians in the World, that have some months in the Year all Day? Or what shall the Inhabitants under either Pole (if any there) where they have Six months Day, and Six months Night? Their Sabbath will come but once in seven Years, for when it comes, it will be a long one.
